RNL ANNOUNCES NEW STAFF ADDITIONS

Denver, Colorado, April 19, 2006 – RNL announces the following staff additions: Christine Dueber, Gina Kokinda, LEED AP and Greg Spaw join the architecture studio as architectural interns. Dueber recently moved to Denver from the east coast. She is a 2004 graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University and is currently working on a high-rise condominium project for RNL. Kokinda comes to RNL from Bennett Wagner & Grody where she worked on several major school projects. Kokinda is working on the Golden Public Works project and is also assisting on RNL's international projects. Spaw comes to RNL from Preston Scott Cohen, Inc., where he worked on the Robbins Elementary School Design Competition. Spaw is working on a high-rise condominium project at RNL. Stan Johnson joins the landscape architecture studio as senior landscape architect. Johnson brings more than 16 years experience to RNL and special expertise in large park design and master planning, championship sports facilities, master planned communities, mixed land use projects, and large hotel / resort facilities including water features design. Johnson is working on various projects at RNL, from international work concerning large scale urban / resort landscape development to several churches across the U.S. Karla Schultz joins the interior design studio as interior designer. Schultz comes to RNL from SLATERPAULL Architects where she designed interiors for churches, schools and recreation centers. Schultz is currently working on several of RNL's church projects across the US, as well as assisting on RNL's local multi-family residential projects.

In other staffing news, RNL congratulates its three newest LEED Accredited Professionals, Tricia Lawler, electrical designer, Rachel Petro, electrical/lighting designer and Steve Radomski, AIA, associate principal. Lawler Petro and Radomski join the ranks of RNL's 32 LEED Accredited Professionals.
